

Welcomes students in city

Alloway stresses 'people'

By Don Vetter
"We have not as a city put an emphasis on the concerns of the human being," new San Jose City Manager James Alloway said Wednesday.

Alloway, who previously held the manager's post in Dayton, Ohio, was the city council's choice to replace former manager Ted Tedesco.

One of the concerns he is going to have to face in his new job is the relationship between SJSU and the city.

"I would love to see a vista that would bring the university and the downtown together," Alloway said.

"I, as well as the city council, would want to see that the university is encouraged to raise the vitality of the downtown area," the 49-year-old administrator said.

Though the city manager does not see SJSU as a major force in city government, he does indicate that 1980 district elections will give them some say in what the council does.

"The university will be part of one of those districts," he said, "and there is no question that they (students) will have an influence on who will be their representative."

"Districting will allow the university to have a better capability to have major influence, if not on the candidate, at least on the way he or she acts as a council member."

He said the downtown area can not be expected to be a place for families.

"It is not far-fetched to have empty-nesters and college students downtown," Alloway said. "They can create the viability and excitement of downtown."

"We have to let the students know that they are a welcome part of the downtown."

As the city manager, it is Alloway's job to implement council policy as well as recommend courses of action and alternatives on issues to council members. His annual salary is $55,000.

Alloway and his staff will be making possibly their biggest impact since arriving on the job in an upcoming report on the downtown hotel situation.

Two weeks ago the city council deferred a proposed hotel development outside the downtown, that if approved would contradict previous council policy.

Though his recommendation could determine the council's decision, Alloway said, "I really don't believe in the manager trying to steer the city council."

Alloway said that current downtown redevelopment has stalled. "We seem to have planned it to death, but we haven't determined what we want or need."

One of those needs Alloway plans to address himself to is the problem of parking, especially its effects on SJSU.

He said that in the upcoming weeks he plans to discuss the problem with SJSU President Gail Fullerton in depth.

He said that downtown renovations, "must come from the university level as well."

The former Marine captain found himself in the middle of San Jose's latest battle between residents and prostitutes in the downtown area after only a few weeks on the job.

"You aren't going to eliminate sex," Alloway said.

About the rash of recent complaints posed to the council and manager in recent weeks by the residents, Alloway said the problem can not be solved at his level.

"I think that it is necessary that citizens realize the police department, the city, the manager or the mayor and city council aren't the sole people who are necessary to resolve the problem."

Council of two minds about resolutions

By Erin A. Hallissy

In what appeared to be more of a circus than a meeting Wednesday, the A.S. Council, in what was meant to clarify the council's stand on prostitution, ended up, apparently more mixed up than ever.

The council passed a resolution last week that urged Mayor Janet Ray Hayes and the San Jose City Council to take steps to end the harassment of SJSU women students and of prostitutes, and to repeal the laws making prostitution solicitation among consenting adults a crime.

However, they also approved the University Study Area task Force recommendations to the city council on public safety, which included recommendations that prostitutes be harassed in order to make streets safer.

A motion to rescind the resolution was made in response to concerns of students and residents who live or work in the area of Fourth and Williams streets, a central spot for prostitution, but failed to get a two-thirds approval by council. The vote was nine in favor of rescinding and six against.

The conflict was not brought to council's attention until Wednesday's meeting, but even though they were told the resolution and Task Force study contradicted each other, they still voted against rescinding the prostitution resolution.

A. S. Vice President Joe Trippi, chairman of council, said he didn't think someone should have to bring the conflict to the council's attention because they should be able to remember how they voted the week before.

Several members of council said the two proposals don't conflict because in the resolution they are talking about the physical harassment that prostitutes sometimes receive, while the task force is concerned with less physical forms of harassment, such as police walking alongside the prostitutes so they will not be able to do business.

However, Trippi, who plans to present the resolution and the task force recommendations to the San Jose City Council April 3, said the city council, on reading the two, might see a conflict between them.

He said the community people thought that A.S. council would be losing some of its credibility before the city council if it presents these seemingly contradicting recommendations.

Many of the students and residents who came before council were upset that council did not rescind the motion because they saw it in conflict with their efforts with the city council to get rid of the prostitution problem downtown.

Those who voted against rescinding the resolution said it effectively presented what they wanted to say to city council, and because the harassment they are talking about is not the same as the task force's recommendation, there really is no conflict.

However, a committee has been set up to define what the council means by harassment, and their definition will be added to the resolution as an addendum so any conflict would be erased.

Other council members said that it would have been better to rescind the resolution, rewrite it, and then send it to city council.

There is a possibility that this will happen at next week's meeting. (Continued on back page)

Leftover A.S. monies remain non-reverting

The controversy over the revised Act 21, the finance code of the A.S. Council, continued Wednesday as A.S. President Maryanne Ryan tried to veto the act but was overridden by the council.

The override of the veto, which needed a two-thirds majority of council, passed 10-3 with two abstentions.

Ryan said that the most important reason for her attempted veto was the clause making all accounts non-reverting, which means that campus groups receiving A.S.

money would be able to keep any profit or leftover funds without returning it to the A.S. general fund.

"I strongly believe that to whatever extent possible, money should be used to benefit those students who have paid it," she said. "By carrying over from year to year, many students will not be receiving a return on their investment in Associated Students."

Smaller programs could be hurt at the expense of larger ones, she said, because less money would be available to them in the general fund.

Ryan stressed that it would be better to try this out on a pilot program basis before making it law. Council already has the power to make funds for groups non-reverting, she said, and so it would be able to make sure the plan would be feasible.

Councilman Paul Boneberg, who proposed this revision in the act, said the change would not cause many problems and it would be beneficial.

"We were talking about change," he said, "to encourage incentive, to encourage involvement, to encourage power being distributed to smaller groups."

"We should not be panicked into thinking that we made a mistake," he said.

Ryan said that problems with the act have come up already because it goes into effect immediately, and the budgeting for next fiscal year has to take this into account.

There is also a problem in interpretation of the act. Some people, including Ryan and Fazel Fazelbhai, who voted against the act last week, said that because the act supersedes previous legislation, all the groups which have already received A.S. funding will be brought under this act, and thus their funds will be non-reverting.

However, others said that because the funds were allocated under the previous act, they would be reverting.

In overriding the veto, council asked the judiciary to clarify the constitutionality of making club funds non-reverting.

Easy tenure in the past causing problems now

By James P. Wagner

The anticipated layoff of tenured faculty forced by declining enrollment is an inheritance of lax hiring policies from the past.

This is the verdict of five SJSU administrators and department chairpersons who were asked to offer their opinions to the Daily.

In the two decades of rapid growth for the CSUC system following World War II, the ease with which instructors were hired and tenure was granted resulted in the overload of instructors who presently enjoy tenure at SJSU.

This is the root of many of the problems facing the campus and also of many student grievances.

Four of the five administrators and chairpersons questioned declined to go on the record with their statements.

However, according to Charles Burdick, chairman of the History Department, it is common knowledge among academic circles that once tenure is granted, quality instruction suffers.

"This is true of any institution where there is an insurance of continued employment," Burdick said.

Although Burdick offered no specific examples of instructors at SJSU who have become lax after tenure was granted, he said that tenure breeds a security which often leads to a dulling of excellence in education.

During the '50s and '60s, there were more teaching positions than candidates to fill those positions. This condition forced the lowering of hiring standards to universities everywhere, including SJSU.

Out of necessity, universities were forced to accept instructors for employment who would not be considered for positions today.

Further, this lack of excellence was institutionalized by the ease with which tenure was granted, guaranteeing continued employment to professors who today would never be hired, according to the administrators and department chairpersons questioned.

However, according to Burdick, the problem is not limited to the '50s and '60s; not all poor instructors were hired in those days.

Excess library books will be sold according to Purchasing Officer James Hill.

Fifteen-thousand books had been scheduled for destruction when the library ran out of storage space, according to library officials. Approximately 7,500 books were destroyed before Burns called a stop to the purge three weeks ago.

"I'm delighted that the university found a way not to go into the book burning business," Burns said.

Apparently state regulations will not thwart the sale of the texts, as had been previously thought, Burns explained.

"It's unfortunate that the state regulations are apparently as confusing as they seem to be, but the university was given good assistance by the office of Assemblyman John Vasconcellos in finding and reaching a solution to our problem," Burns said.

Burns declined to specify further. Vasconcellos could not be reached for comment.

SJSU Purchasing Officer James Hill said the Spartan Bookstore would be handling the sale rather than the SJSU library.

"It's a happy solution for us," Hill said. "The money that's generated by the sale will be turned back to the university."

"What's not sold, we'll just have to haul to the dump," Hill said.

"Providing access to books and helping people use them - that is our business, but selling the books - that isn't part of our normal activity," Library Director Harold Olsen said.

Petition drive for Ombudsman suffers from lack of response

By Debbie Hunsinger
A.S. Council's petition drive to save the ombudsman office is suffering from lack of response, according to Councilman Hazel Fazelbhoy.

Fazelbhoy is co-author of a council resolution enouncing the elimination of the ombudsman office and initiator of a petition drive to show student opposition to the cut.

Two weeks into the petition drive, Fazelbhoy said they have collected only about 200 signatures.

He blames the "disappointing" lack of response on two basic factors.

First of all, he said it is mostly due to the "compromise" by SJSU President Gail Fullerton to appoint a faculty member to fill the ombudsman position rather than having the duties shared by people in Student Services.

"I think the general student body thinks as long as there is an ombudsman the job will be done," he said.

However, Fazelbhoy thinks a faculty member who will eventually have to go back to the department "he came from would be afraid of alienating people and not act as independently as someone without departmental ties.

At a council meeting two weeks ago, Fullerton announced the change of plan that the ombudsman would not act out of the Student Services Division, but would be through student fees.

As a faculty member, the ombudsman would be paid by regular faculty salary payroll, he said.

Fazelbhoy attributes his success to Fullerton succumbing to student pressure that student fees should not pay for the ombudsman position.

Ombudsman Jo Ella

Hannah, whose position will be eliminated effective July 1, is paid directly through Fullerton's executive management account.

"It is ironic that the first person she (Fullerton) cuts is one who is most directly related to students rather than any other administrator," he said.

Secondly, Fazelbhoy said the lack of effort by council members and other students in a possibly "fruitless" endeavor has handicapped the petition drive.

Erotic film festival plays SJSU

Why is the SJSU Amateur Radio Club sponsoring the San Jose Erotic Film Festival at Morris Dailey Auditorium?

"We needed the money," said club member Rich Smith.

The approximately two-hour program contains nine short, erotic films, two of which are animated.

Members of the radio club viewed part of the program before deciding to sponsor it. Smith said they found it erotic, not pornographic.

One sequence, "Taking Off," depicts a strip tease artist who removes more than her costume. It is said to be popular with women's groups.

"Ever Ready Hard On (Buried Treasure)" is an animated film from the 1920s featuring music by early jazz pianist Jelly Roll Morton and is rumored to have been drawn by artists from the Disney studio.

"Orange" is about eating an orange, erotically.

Other segments feature couples making love, cartoon penises performing gymnastic exercises and sequences from "Devil and Miss Jones."

This is not the first time films of this nature have been shown at SJSU. In 1975, "Deep Throat" earned a $3,000 profit when it was shown in the S.U. Ballroom.

The radio club will use its profits to buy new equipment, Smith said.

The film festival started last night and is scheduled for Saturday at 6, 8, 10 p.m. and midnight, and Sunday at 6, 8 and 10 p.m.

Tickets are $2.50 for students and $3.00 general admission.

of our needs. We are in a better position to know what we need and what we can do without," he said.

Although Fazelbhoy is not optimistic, he plans to continue collecting names and will present them to Fullerton as a demonstration of concern.

Gardner agreed and said, "I would like to see the women get involved who want to get involved and this gives them a place to start."

Another objective of the network is to share resources such as ideas from papers or bibliographies and articles, Parriott said.

"It's also forming research groups for people who are undergraduates and graduate students to do research together," she said.

When the network first started in early February, a "needs assessment" questionnaire was sent to 350 students in Women's Studies classes and cross-listed classes in other departments. It asked if they had ever felt the need for such a support group, what their interests in such a group would be and what would bring them to meetings.

Many women and a "surprising" number of men responded that they had a desire for a women's support network and that sharing friendships and resources, getting involved and informal discussions would be the most important things it could offer, according to Gardner.

"Someone who might be just a little bit interested in Women's Studies might be a whole lot interested in this group," Hostetler said.

"This gives them a place to come and share their ideas and get feedback. Sometimes an outside objective helps when dealing with problems."

Although the Women's Studies Program is the common bond for most women in the network, Hostetler maintained that the group doesn't want "to be exclusive to just Women's Studies students."

All three women also stressed they would like to see men actively involved in the network. However, no men have attended any meetings, Parriott said.

Hostetler hopes to "tune in" on women who would not normally be active in the Women's Center and said the network is completely separate from the center and just uses it for a meeting place.

"The Women's Center is mainly for all kinds of women throughout the whole community. The network is more geared to women on campus," Parriott said.

Once of the most important goals the network could achieve would be offering support to the Women's Studies Program "to keep it from getting lost," Hostetler said.

"There are so few opportunities in the country like we have here at the graduate level," she said, referring to the Women's Studies master's program.

Women's support network starts up

By Debbie Hunsinger
Women need support and encouragement, according to students Karen Hostetler and Patricia Gardner.

That's why they are starting an informal Women's Support Network on campus - to give women a place to share concerns and help others, Hostetler said.

"Women in general just need to be given a lot of encouragement to follow up on their ideas and choices of careers or fields of study," she said.

The network is a group of students and faculty which meet weekly to share ideas and receive feedback and outside objectivity, according to Hostetler.

Network member Judith Parriott said the group's support system can be very helpful. "It makes you feel like there is someone to talk to in this big school," she said.

Parriott said since the network is composed of both faculty and students, it opens a communication line between these two often conflicting groups.

She said it encourages women to get involved without restricting them heavily. "You don't have to come every week if you don't want to and you don't have to sign anything to be a member. It's just there if you want it or feel the need for it or if you just want to meet some new people."

Gardner agreed and said, "I would like to see the women get involved who want to get involved and this gives them a place to start."

Another objective of the network is to share resources such as ideas from papers or bibliographies and articles, Parriott said.

THE SAN JOSE EROTIC FILM FESTIVAL

A series of films that are graphic, cosmic, humorous, offbeat, animated and "pornographic" in their eroticism. Highly acclaimed and prizewinners in many categories, these films comprise without any question an artistic essay on the state of contemporary erotic art. Featuring:

THE CLUB

A hilarious work depicting gigantic animated phalluses who exercise on gymnastic equipment at the "club," all the while puffing on pipes and hiccupping into spittoons.

TAKE OFF

A striptease dancer performs a highly suggestive and professional routine until the filmically fantastic trick ending she dismembers herself for the image the audience has of her! This film is particularly liked by women's groups.

NORIEN TEN

A film that is perhaps better titled THE COSMIC ORGASM. Extremely bold and explicitly erotic, perhaps "pornographic" to some, the film is one of the few filmed examples of non-objectified graphic sex.

HOLDING

A sensitive, beautifully done study of two women sharing physical and emotional tenderness.

EVER READY HARD ON (BURIED TREASURE)

A perfect print of the notorious hard-core cartoon of the 1920's with a soundtrack added by Jelly Roll Morton, legendary pianist of the New Orleans sporting houses. The animation is incredible, thought by many to be the work of Disney animators.

ORANGE

The most erotic eating sequence ever - of an orange, that is.

PORNOGRAPHIC PREVIEWS

Segments from Gerard Damiano's notorious DEVIL AND MISS JONES, and the hilarious, IT HAPPENED IN HOLLYWOOD.

PORTRAIT OF THE ARTIST AS A RENTY OLD MAN

That dirty of rarties, a genuinely funny pornographic film that features some luscious porn stars who fulfill all of the 65 year old filmmaker's wildest fantasies.

CARIBBEAN INTERLUDE

An exceptionally well done study of heterosexual love. Lush scenery and the obvious warmth and sensuality of the couple combine to cast exquisite reflections of joy in human lovemaking upon the screen.

SJSU, Santa Clara open second half play

By Dan Wood

It will be a pair of opposite numbers opening the second half of Northern California Baseball Association play tonight at 7:30 at Municipal Stadium.

SJSU, first half champion of the NCBA, will play host to the Santa Clara Broncos, who are coming off a fifth place finish in the first half of the season. The crosstown rivals will travel to Santa Clara tomorrow for a noon doubleheader at Buck Shaw Stadium.

While the Spartans will be trying to solidify their standing as the top team in the league in the second half, Santa Clara will be struggling to make something of what has been a disappointing campaign thus far.

Inexperience has cost the Broncos dearly this season, as they've dropped 10 one-run games en route to an overall record of 10-12.

"It's just been the bounce of the ball, an error here or there, or a lack of timely hitting that have been the major factors," Santa Clara coach Sal Taormina said.

"All our games have been close," he said. "I think we've only been out of one game all year."

A season-long batting slump has probably been the biggest reason for the Broncos' misfortunes so far.

Left fielder Don Mazzilli has been the only man to hit consistently for Santa Clara. Mazzilli is batting .346.

From there it's all downhill, as the next highest mark is catcher Mike Cummins' .278. In fact, only five Bronco regulars are above .250.

"Some of our seasoned hitters just haven't come around," Taormina said.

"I know they're going to hit; I just hope they start before it's too late."

One bright spot for Santa Clara in recent weeks has been the play of Kevin Walters.

The freshman from Aptos has played in just nine games, but has 10 hits in 20 at bats. He is likely to be the designated hitter this weekend, Taormina said.

Injuries and illness have plagued the Broncos lately, especially their pitching staff.

Top hurler Vic Viegas, the possessor of a scoreless streak of 22 and two thirds innings, has an elbow problem.

"It's conjecture whether or not he'll be ready this weekend," Taormina said.

Such is also the case with Jeff Walsh, in doubt because of a blister on his finger.

So obviously, the Broncos' pitching plans for the three game series are anything but set.

Other possible starters are Henry Torres, Joe Balderston and Bryan Funk.

First baseman Brian Hurley has been fighting the flu and third baseman John Barrett has a slight groin pull, but both are expected to play, Taormina said.

Randy Raphael will open on the mound tonight for the Spartans, with Dave Nobles and Jay Brazil getting the starting calls tomorrow.

Tappa Kegga gets spilled; All 'n All wins in intramurals

SUNDAY

A funny thing happened to Tappa Kegga after it built a seemingly insurmountable 12-point lead with 12 minutes to go against All 'n All last Sunday.

The lead disappeared. All 'n All came from behind to post a 49-48 victory in a showdown between two undefeated squads in Sunday A-League intramural action.

Bruce Strombom and Bill Treseler led All 'n All with 19 and 15 points, respectively. Jim Blamey and Jim Moniz, two former Buchser High standouts, topped Tappa Kegga with 17 and 13 markers.

All 'n All leads the A-League Western Division with a 4-0 record. Tappa Kegga is 2-1.

In the East, GWT holds a 3-0 record while Kappa Alpha Psi is 2-0. GWT gulped down the Rubber Biscuits 57-46 and Kappa Alpha Psi had an easy time with Lowe's Pros, 50-31. Brian Lenzen scored 23 points for GWT.

In other A-K League play Revised Funk II pounded Individuals No. 1 60-26. Back Court stopped Galaxy 54-39 and Number One outscored the Runnin' Rebels 61-52.

The SAE Warheads, Dirtballers, ATO Gold and Schlink's Boys all stayed unbeaten in the B-League.

SAE overcame the No Names 58-47, the Dirtballers were 47-41 victors over A Team. ATO punished the Spank-a-Delics 47-24 and Schlink's Boys dominated the Lakers 79-52.

Individuals No. 1 topped the Unknowns 59-43, Theta Chi Red outpointed Sigma Chi 47-39 and the Almaden Express downed She Brought it Up 79-31 in other games.

MONDAY

In the B-League, Alpha Clubba Boya and Tiger Paws own 4-0 records, two games ahead of the pack.

The Tiger Paws clawed Not Ready 54-36 as Bruce Duquette meshed 19 points and Tony Dorado added 16. Alpha Clubba Boya handled the Individuals 49-44.

Derry's Devils plastered Moulder No. 1 52-34 and Slick KC ripped NORML 55-39 in other B-League contests.

Bosom Buddies expanded their record to 4-0 in the C-League by powering past the Moon Units 49-19, while Shattered (3-0) was idle.

NBA edged High Times

25-24, Iota Phi Pi smothered the Wallbangers 38-16 and Markham crunched the Moulder Rockets 47-36 in other C-League encounters.

Cagers' 'Mr. Everything'

Rank talks about Spartans' lost season

By Steve Carp
He has led the SJSU basketball team in scoring the last two years. He is one of the most talented players in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association. He is also one of the most frustrated individuals on the team.

He is Wally Rank, the Spartans' 'Mr. Everything.'

"It was a disappointing year," Rank said of SJSU's 7-20 season. "I thought we'd do a lot better than we did and I was hoping to have my best season ever. I guess it just didn't work out the way I hoped it would."

Rank did have his best season, scoring-wise, averaging 15.1 per game. But Wally was hampered with a sprained wrist and a sprained ankle that hampered his performance. Yet he never complained.

"Yeah, I played hurt, but I had to. I didn't want to let the rest of the guys down and I didn't want to let myself down."

"You know," he continued, "people think all I'm interested in are my stats. Well, that isn't true. The only stat I'm interested in is winning. I don't care what I do as long as we win."

Rank was named to the second team All-PCAA and All-Northern California squads and he was happy about that. "You know, there are a lot of great players in Northern California so for me to be considered with them is a great honor."

"The league has improved a lot since I first came here. There's a lot more talent and the quality of play has picked up." Like most players, Rank wasn't surprised when they found out that Ivan Guevara had been fired.

"I could see it coming. We read what the papers were saying and everything. No, I wasn't surprised he got fired. It seemed kinda messed-up the way they handled it."

"They," was Athletic Director Bob Murphy, who gave Guevara his walking papers and appointed Guevara's assistant Hal Dohling interim head coach.

Rank had hoped that Guevara would have opened up the offense this year and let the team run more than it did.

"We got a lot of guys who can run. Me, (Mike) Mendez, Sid (Williams), Doug Murrey, we all played the running game."

"If we could run, we'd be tough. Not too many teams could stay with us if we ran."

Rank hopes the new coach will open up the offense, take the harness off the Spartans and let them loose.

"I hope the new coach will run more. But I'll play it anyway he wants. Hell, I've played slow-down three years, what's one more?"

"I'd really like to take the PCAA next year and make it to the NCAA's. That's what it's all about. I see these guys on TV and I say to myself, 'shoot, we can run with these dudes, we just need to run.'"

As far as next year is concerned for Wally Rank, he is ready right now. "To be honest with you, I wasn't in the best shape this season."

"I'm working out already to get ready for next year. I'm looking forward to busting some ass out there and I think we're gonna do it."

Short-handed track team travels to Stanford

By Danny Edwards
STANFORD-SJSU's undefeated track and field team hits the road for the first time this season to compete in the Stanford Relays tomorrow at 10 a.m. at Stanford stadium.

The Spartans, who won the Relays last year, will be without four top performers in long jumper Essodina Atchade, discus thrower Colin Sutherland, and high jumpers Thurlis Gibbs and Sylvester Pritchett.

Atchade, who has leaped 24' 9-1/2" this season, underwent exploratory knee surgery yesterday afternoon. "It is considered minor (the operation)," said head coach Ernie Bullard. "Hopefully it is not going to require major surgery."

The 1976 Olympic qualifier from Togo may have a bone chip or cartilage fragment loose in his knee. Bullard said if there is too much damage in the knee and major surgery is required, Atchade could be out for the rest of the season.

Distance and weight coach Don Riggs said Sutherland has the flu and won't be able to throw.

Gibbs, last year's Pacific Coast Athletic Association high jump champion at 7-1, is also experiencing knee problems.

Pritchett, who was injured earlier in the year and is the national junior college record holder at 7-3, jumped only once this season (UC Berkeley dual), stopping at 6-6. The qualifying mark for the Relays is 6-8; thus, he will not be allowed to compete in the meet.

Bullard and Riggs both said Division II power Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo will provide tough competition and may come out on top in the team scoring.

Bullard admitted that SJSU does have "one eye toward Long Beach" next week. The Spartans will meet the 49ers in dual action at Bud Winter Field Mar. 31.

SJSU's only dual loss in its last 20 dual meets was to Long Beach last season.

Spartan golfers avenge earlier loss; rout Stanford on Cards' own course

By Danny Edwards
After being beaten for the first time this season by Stanford University last week at the UC Davis Invitational, SJSU's men's golf team avenged its loss by drubbing the Cardinals 19-1/2 to 17-1/2 there Friday.

The Spartans were scheduled to play Sacramento State at Pasatiempo Golf Course in Santa Cruz Monday but the match was cancelled as another tournament was being played there.

In the Stanford match, the No. 1 men from each team competed against each other, the No. 2 men played against each other, and so on; with six men making up each team.

A team scored one point when an individual had a better score than his opponent on the front nine; one point for back nine; one point for total score. One-half point was awarded if the two opposing players split the front and back nine.

Also, the top two men on one team were a best ball duo as were the next two and the next two. The same scoring system was used for best ball play, so there were 27 points possible.

Don Levin, SJSU's No. 1 player for the match, was low scorer with a 70 as he defeated Stanford's Steve Schroeder, who had 75, 3-0. No. 2 man for the Spartans, Mike Barnblatt, 77, lost to Jack Skilling, 76, 2-1/2 to 1/2 but Barnblatt and Levin combined for a best ball 3-0 win.

SJSU's Steve Bazzaneo ousted Kim Cater 2-1, with the Spartan third man shooting 75 to Cater's 77. Achim Steinfurth's 72 easily bested David Games' 78, with Steinfurth winning 3-0. Gazzaneo and Steinfurth combined for a 2-1/2 to 1/2 best ball win.

The Spartans' fifth man, Mark Wiebe, fired a 71 to Nell Robinson's 75 for a 2-1/2 to 1/2 win. Stanford's Eric Morse barely beat Don DeLorenzo 2-1, with Morse shooting 72 to DeLorenzo 73. Wiebe and DeLorenzo took the best ball scoring, 2-1.

The win marked the 28th time the Spartans have defeated Stanford in the last 33 dual matches, including one tie.

SJSU's next action will be an unofficial dual match against the Lake Merced Country Club. The Spartans will send 10 players against 10 of Lake Merced's best.

The Spartans' "first big test," according to coach Jerry Vroom, is the 72-hole Aztec Invitational in San Diego March 30-April 1.

In the Spirit of Sisterhood

"The Rock Will Wear Away"

"We can be like drops of water falling on the stone,
Splashing, breaking, dispersing in air,
Weaker than the stone by far,
But be aware that as time goes by,
The rock will wear away."

The spirit of sisterhood flowed through the music of Meg Christian and the people who came to celebrate the grand finale of 1979 Womyn's Week. Meg sang of woman's struggles, woman's pride and woman's love. After the concert the S.U. Ballroom was cleared for dancing—

"We are family...
I've got all my sisters with me!"

You will be given forms to establish candidacy.

Tenure causes problems

(Continued from Page 1) "Many of our deadbeats came from that time, but many also came before and after," Burdick said.

The governor's office in Sacramento is not helping the situation, according to Burdick.

Body count, that detestable phrase left over from the Vietnam era, has replaced considerations of quality in education in drafting budgetary formulas for the CSUC system.

This condition has forced a scramble for students to bolster sagging enrollment, according to Burdick.

"We will perhaps give higher grades," said Burdick, citing one strategy instructors will use to entice students into their classrooms.

With tenure, many instructors have become complacent in their instruction, according to the administrators and chairpersons questioned, a condition which hurts students.

These sources said deans and department chairpersons are unable to motivate professors to better performance because, with the umbrella afforded by tenure and the philosophy of academic freedom, these professors have a free rein, in spite of objections to their performance from students and colleagues.

Prof. Burdick agreed with this estimation, although he declined to cite specific examples of this problem.

In 1978, the Academic Senate tightened the requirements for granting tenure, focusing on excellence in the candidate for tenure. However, many faculty and administrators believe this is too little too late, and for the present, SJSU is strapped with a high population of tenured faculty.

Manager says flexibility necessary

He cited that the problem lies in the court system when the prostitutes are back on the streets before the police finish their report.

Alloway said he faced the prostitution problem in Dayton and solved it through "innovation."

"When dealing with the ladies of the night," he said, "you have to realize that they need a customer."

"If you interfere with their making a deal then you have impeded their ability to make money. If this occurs often enough ... maybe they will go and make money somewhere else."

He said that simple things such as a police officer walking the streets, police cars heavily involved in the area and publishing both the names of the "johns" as well as the prostitutes help discourage transactions.

Alloway has been a professional city administrator for the past 26 years, working in Teaneck and Elizabeth, N.J. before Dayton.

"Power is in the individual, not in the structure," he said. "The whole concept of the manager form of government is to basically carry out the directions of the council."

"I can't visualize where I would be going in contrary to the city council, it's just the proper way."

"I've worked in cities that have districts," the soft-spoken Alloway said, "I don't feel they will have any infringement on the responsibilities of my office."

During the council's selection of a city manager earlier this year, opponents to Alloway felt that there was a lack of similarities between shrinking Dayton and growing San Jose.

"I don't want to have people feel that I am taking the mechanisms we had involved in Dayton and impose them in San Jose unless they are pertinent," he said.

One thing Alloway will find similar in his new city to Dayton is the high percentage of minorities.

"Dayton is 35 percent black," Alloway said, "here we have almost a 21 percent Chicano population."

"You can't really deal the same way with each ethnic group. Be concerned with what their concerns are and go from that point."

This past week the city council approved the recommended work outline for a 20-month general plan review for the city that includes extensive citizen participation in the program's process.

Alloway said he feels that the citizen concept will produce something that is viable and needed for the city. He said it can only be accepted that some unanimity may occur, but the ideal is to maximize the citizen input process.

Addressing himself to the housing problem that exists in San Jose, especially the high no-vacancy rate in the SJSU area, Alloway said it is a characteristic of the Bay region.

"People say the way to solve this problem is to build a lot of housing. Unfortunately in the city as a corporation ... housing does not bring about a situation where we don't lose."

"This is certainly looking at it from an economic view, but not a human view."

The new San Jose resident said he has not decided where his family shall live yet, but jokingly indicated a "heavily starched pup tent" might have to do, thanks to the area's high prices.

Alloway, born in Erie, Penn., was raised in Jamestown, N.Y. and went to Grove City College, where he met his wife, Ruth. The Alloways have three children, a son and two daughters, who will be living with the family in San Jose.

"The greatest sophistication of government," Alloway said, "is the ability to provide different services to the different needs, rather than give the cafeteria-style government."

"Unfortunately we're a long way away from that," he added, "plus Proposition 13 is going to impede upon that development."

Library books go on sale

"We don't like the library to be seen as dealing with things that are out of date," but he added, "We have never opposed either the selling or giving away of the books."

"In terms of our professional judgment we see them as having outlived their useful value."

He said books that are considered of value are sent to the Universal Serials and Book Exchange, but that these books were not considered valuable enough to send.

Bruce Richardson, attorney in the chancellor's office in Long Beach for SJSU, had stated that if the books were considered surplus property, "there has to be a fair market value received for that property."

So Hill contacted several local scrapping companies to establish the value of the books as pulp material. Because the companies are not in the market for old texts, Hill concluded the books are of no monetary value.

If it is rewritten, the council will probably try to make clear as to what they want - an end to the physical harassment of prostitutes and SJSU female students, and not for the police to completely end the enforcement of the law, according to the Matthew Savoca, author of the resolution.

It appears that the resolution may come up for more clarification next week, either in council defining what they mean by harassment in their resolution, and adding that as an addendum to the resolution, or in rescinding and rewriting the resolution.

In other action, the council approved two students for vacated seats on the Academic Senate. They are Ann Younger and Renate Dietz.

A referendum was placed on the ballot which asks if students are in favor of amending the by-laws to the A.S. constitution. The amendment would authorize the removal of student representative from the Academic Senate after missing three consecutive meetings or accumulating four absences per semester.

Other referenda which people wanted to be placed on the ballot could be because the council quorum before being allowed to vote on them. A deadline for placing referenda on the ballot has passed.

Chapuis concert Sunday

SJSU Music Department will be presenting Isabelle Chapuis in a concert Sunday afternoon at 3:30 in the Music Building Concert hall.

The recital, part of the Faculty Artist Series, will feature Chapuis on the flute. Guest artists include Edmund Correia, piano, and two faculty members, William Trimble, saxophone, and Donald Homuth, cello.

The program includes Three Melodies, for flute, piano and violoncello by Dane Rudhyar, who also will be attending the performance.

Other musical pieces performed will be elegy by Bela Bartok, Concerto Da Camera by Arth Honegger; Sequenza Luciano Berio; Sonata Franz Joseph Haydn, a Cantabile Et Presto, Georges Enesco.

Chapuis has taught flute at SJSU for 5 years. Playing the flute since a 14, has toured through the United States, Euro and Canada.

ENGINEERING MAJORS

$1,431-$1,666

Your degree (June 1979 or earlier) qualifies you for an entry level professional engineering position with East Bay Municipal Utility District. We are the West's second largest water and waste water utility.

We are currently recruiting for the following positions which do not require work experience:

JR. CIVIL ENGINEER

Varied professional assignments including structures design, water resources planning, hydraulic design, construction inspection, materials testing, environmental assessment, distribution planning and systems operations.

JR. ENVIRONMENTAL ENGINEER

Varied professional assignments in connection with the interception, treatment and disposal of waste water or the collection, storage, treatment, quality and distribution of water. Possible vacancies in our modern waste water plant (located in Oakland) where an $80 million expansion has made it the largest high purity oxygen activated sludge plant in California.

In addition to local career employment with no travel or relocation requirements, we offer an opportunity to work in close association with over 50 registered California engineers, qualifying experience for registration, opportunities for advancement, tuition refund program, excellent benefits and more.
